

Today, I'd like to recognize Claudia Rodriguez Soto as one of our Hispanic Heritage Month honorees.

Soto is the Director of Communications and Development at East Valley Community Health Center. She is a member of the executive leadership team with dedicated practice in servant leadership, community engagement, public relations, partnership development, marketing, and communications.

Soto's non-profit career officially started in 1998 with the American Red Cross Regional office in Los Angeles. This role ignited her passion of 23 years as an educational advocate for children with special needs, community leader, and building relationships with and between people in our underserved communities. Soto takes great pride in serving those whose voices have been silenced and building bridges through the gaps in our system to ensure diversity, equity, and inclusion.

Soto also contributes her time and talent as a board member and volunteer for a local children's foundation, The Roman Fund.
